A Brakeman's Dream .- A brakeman on one of the regular freight trains on the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad met with a most singular escape from death the other night. There had been an unusually heavy rush of freight over the road and he had been at work constantly for two days and three nights. Between Deposit and Hancock two trains collided and caused a wreck, which was likely to detain the trains and blockade the track for some time. The brakeman in question was sent back to flag the first approaching train. He went back about a fourth of a mile, the regular distance required by the rules of the company, and feeling very tired from overwork he sat down on the track, on the outside rail, to wait. Before five minutes he was sound asleep. While thus asleep he dreamed he was lying on the track and that the Atlantic express, one of the swiftest trains on the road ran over him and cut off both arms, mangling him so terribly that he could not possibly survive. The dream was so horrible that the man awoke, with a start, to find him-self lying flat on the track and the Atlantic express coming round a curve, about thirty yards away, at the rate of forty miles an hour. To seize the red lantern and leap from the track was but an instant's work. The engineer of the express saw the light and stopped the train just in time to prevent a collision with the blockaded freight trains.

[From the Memphis Free Trader.] WHY USE HOG'S LARD When We Have a Cheaper, Purer and Thousand Times Better Substitute?

The word scrofula comes from scrofa- a sow. Of all animals, hogs are the filthiest and the most diseased and disease-creating. Consumption is the worse form of scrofula. The wise mother who looks to the health of her family will banish lard from the kitchen-banish it at once and forever, Any person who has ever taken the trouble to visit a slaughter-house and inspect the livers of the slaughtered hogs will go away with a deadly digust against hog meat and hog lard. A sound hog liver is not to be found. They are perforated with worms, and full of pustules and boils. This shows how full of disease are what are called "fine fat" hogs. There is now no excuse for using hog's lard. Refined cotton seed oil is a pure vegetable oil, as wholesome and as delicate as olive oil. It is better for biscuit and frying purposes than lard. not scorching so easily; it is good as butter for cakes. We know many of the first families of this city who are using it, and think it far better than city who are using it, and think it far better than lard. It is much cheaper. The whole-price by the barrel is only 60 cents per gallon. Retail price, from 75 to 80 cents per gallon, or 10 cents per pound. One pound goes much further than a pound of lard. There are 7 ½ pounds of oil in a gallon, which at 75 cents per gallon, would be 10 cents per lb. Lard is 14 cents per pound. As 2, of a pound of the oil is equivalent to a pound of lard, it is clear that the oil is from 4 to 5 cents. lard it is clear that the oil is from 4 to 5 cents cheaper than lard and a thousand times more wholesome. A very fine quality of oil, so cheap and excellent for cooking purposes, can be obtained at the principal Grocers and from CHAS, S. TAYLOR, Jr., ap20-1w Wholesale Agent.
